Senior Tappings Choose Two Juniors: Pinkerton and Steck; Ted Cloak Also Is Honored

The senior members of Mace selected two junior men to be tapped in the Honors convocation Thursday morning in the Lawrence College Chapel. In addition to the juniors, Tad Pinkerton and Ted Steck, an honorary faculty member was tapped. He was F. Theodore Cloak of the drama department.

The candidates were picked on the basis of their scholastic attainment, service to the school, and high moral character.

TAD PINKERTON is a mathematics major and is an independent. He has served as SEC New Student Week Chairman, Encampment Steering Board Chairman, and as a member of the RLC Steering Board. He has also received the freshman Mace award which is given to that freshman student which best exemplifies the qualities of Mace. He was Mid-West Conference cross-country champion in 1957, Conference mile champion in 1958, cross-country team captain for 1959, and is a member of "L" club. Mr. Cloak has been a three time recipient of Rockefeller grants, the most recent of which was in 1957. At this time he studied the development of theater and drama in the United States and Europe. In addition he has done other study at Wesleyan, Northwestern, and Yale.

Wendy Crouch, Sue Baker Named Handbook Heads; Amendments Fail

In an all-school vote which was held Wednesday, Wendy Crouch and Sue Baker were elected as the new co-chairmen for the Handbook Committee. The election had been re-scheduled due to the deletion of one of the candidate's names from the ballot of the past SEC elections. The new chairmen won in a close race over Anita Hansen and Nancy Wissmueller, who ran together, and Nancy Shepard-Gretchen Hildner combination.

The other issues on the ballot were two amendments to the SEC constitution. The first dealt with changing the necessary number of votes to amend the constitution. If passed, only a two-thirds majority of those voting would have been necessary to amend the constitution.

The other amendment would have allowed any student who has had three semesters at Lawrence to run for SEC president.

Both of these amendments were defeated as the necessary two-thirds majority to amend did not vote. 545 students voted, while the needed number was some 30 more.

Moland, Cusic Laud SEC As Best in Midwest Conference

At Monday's SEC meeting, president Doug Moland and vice-president Dick Cusic stated that Lawrence's system of student government is at least "five to ten years" ahead of other schools in its conference. Returning from the Mid-West Conference of the Student Government Association at St. Olaf College, the two SEC officers felt that Lawrence's system was very superior to those of the other schools attending.

At the conference Cusic heard many complaints from students at other colleges about constant faculty interference which often crippled student action. In comparison, Lawrence's SEC enjoys almost complete independence from faculty supervision. Moland emphasized SEC's potential and cited student apathy as its greatest problem.

After lauding its governmental machinery, SEC continued its revising of its constitution. A proposal was discussed that the SEC treasurer serve for an academic year, instead of the present calendar year term.

According to this plan, the treasurer would be elected at the end of the school year and take office the following fall. Most delegates felt that this change would lead to better planning of the SEC budget. Moland appointed the Revisions Committee to draw up a constitutional revision changing the treasurer's term.

In its other major action of the evening, SEC unanimously voted to appoint a purchasing agent for SEC. This individual will buy the tools and materials used by the SEC committees. It was hoped that if all purchases were made by one person, expenses would be cut down and duplications avoided.

A D Pi To Fete With Mardi Gras

Have you ever been to a Mardi Gras? Have you ever wanted to be a part of the color, the noise, the thrill that make up this exciting pageant? The chance is now yours if you attend the A D Pi Mardi Gras Masked Ball, Saturday night, April 18, from 9 to 1. The setting for this gala event will be the French quarter of New Orleans (Terrace Room of the Union) and Ron Bachleitner's band will set the mood with festive music.

Scheduled for 11 o'clock, exciting entertainment will serve as the brilliant climax to carry all from the everyday life of Lawrence to the gaiety and splendor of an authentic Mardi Gras.

In charge of this occasion is Sue Wheeler, social chairman. Heading her committees are Marcia Millar, food; Peggy Nichols, entertainment; Liz Morgan, publicity; Jackie Wells, decorations, and Margi Iten, favors.

Don't miss the chance to be part of the most exciting event of Lawrence's social year. Costumes will be colorful, gay, and varied, so don your most illusive mask and let yourself be carried along by the tempo of the festivities. For the time of your life it's the A D Pi Mardi Gras!

Pan-Hel Ballroom Dons Spring Garb

Bedecked in "the garb of spring," the Riverview Lounge of the Union was the site of the Pan-Hellenic Ball April 11. This dance is sponsored annually by the Pan-Hellenic Council, which consists of representatives of the six social sororities on campus.

A Japanese decor provided the theme for the decorations. Couples entered the dance floor over an old-fashioned wooden bridge lighted by Japanese lanterns. Creeping along the sides of the bridge and spread throughout the room were oriental trees (sprayed rubber plants) covered with pastel crepe-paper flowers.

A traditional black pagoda spread its wings over the fireplace. Streamers of intertwined flowers screened the windows and the alcove from which floated the strains of music, provided by Orville Meltz and his orchestra.

SAI News

Listeners filled the Conservatory Recital Hall, April 8 as Miss Inge Weiss and Mrs. Fred Schroeder, patronesses of S. A. I., illustrated "do's and don'ts" of stage presence and etiquette. S.A.I. pledges then presented an hour of music for the actives as a prerequisite to activation.

Those performing included: Nancy Bodenstein, Kathy Goldsworthy, Jill Grande, Judy Kolath, Judy Lawson, Andy Matthias, and Pris Rydberg. Activation took place early April 9.

Approximately 25 actives took part in the annual officers' overnight retreat at the home of Mrs. Harold Heller, April 10. The members feasted on warm cookies, popcorn, cokes, potato chips, and pretzels.

After conferences, everyone joined in playing games. Breakfast Saturday morning ended the retreat, called a success by all who attended.

Counselors for freshmen women for 1959-60 were announced April 11 by Miss Mary Morton and the present counselors. The 20 sophomores were chosen from a group of 48 who applied, by the present counselors, with the help of recommendations by faculty, administration, classmates and former counselors. Those chosen include:

Men Must Prove Scores to Defer

Male students who will be in school beyond their twenty-second birthdays are reminded that selective service boards begin induction for military service at that age. Those students who will wish to be deferred will avoid difficulty in this matter if they are able to present the College Qualification Test scores to support their requests. This test will be given only once this year, April 30.

Students interested in taking this test should obtain applications and information bulletins from their local draft boards. Applications which must be post-marked no later than midnight, April 9, should be mailed to Selective Service Examining Section, Princeton, New Jersey.

KALEIDOSCOPE

By JUDY HALLETT

We observe with a sense of resentment and foreboding the increasing impact which "Modern Bride" has been making upon our contemporaries one floor below us. Squeals of delight greet the postman in the morning and the remainder of the day is spent in the discussions of silver patterns, the virtues of various pots and pans, how to cook a pot roast, or the delights of Glacier National Park for the early summer honeymooner. It's not that we dispute the separate merits of any of these things but we wonder how, after four years of supposedly searching for the naked meaning of life, so much of it can be found in household utensils and nuptial arrangements.

But then, maybe we're just sour grapes, having had increasingly more realistic visions of ourselves equipped with streamlined briefcases and sturdy groundgridders as graduation draws upon us.

"Feliz Dia"

Lawrence Spanish majors celebrated Pan-American Day April 14, by attending the performance of a classic Golden Age play staged by the graduate department of the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Approximately 15 members of the Department joined coalitions from Beloit, Ripon and Madison at a reception in the University Union before the Circle Theatre revealed the elegant costume and speech of "Los Interes Creados," or "The Bonds of Interest." The play was thought to be a success and a truly beneficial experience by all who attended.

All Spanish students on campus are invited to attend a Pan-American Week celebration April 20, in Colman Recreation Room at 7 p.m.

'Sunday Afternoon' Feeling Pervades Real Hospitality

The importance of really being earnest was exhibited in the hospitable reception of guests by the Peabody men at their open house April 12. The somewhat expected comical features of the open house were replaced in reality by a sincere effort to show the house at its best.

This effort was realized in a varied art exhibit by Brooks Nemacheck, which included several sketches, portraits, and a fine oil showing Main Hall at night. Russ Dashow served punch to visitors as they lounged in the living room to view the fine art.

The visitor was able to wander through the meandering halls and find something new, exciting, different, or just plain clever around almost every corner. The Japanese and Korean influence of Yukio and Sim was displayed through several pieces of art in their rooms and through the gentle strains of Eastern music which flowed from both rooms.

That good old "Sunday afternoon" feeling was the drawing card for Bob Heidorn, but upon surveying his room and his view toward College Avenue, one discovered a Ginkgo tree. The Ginkgo is of Japanese origin and its branches grow at a noticeable right angle from the trunk. Come spring and this tree will bombard the Peabody lawn with oriental fan-shaped leaves.

Even though tinted and glowing pictures of some very prominent young women on our campus invited spectators to several rooms, a more scientific aspect played the role of an invitation in Norm James' room. In this room a few privileged characters were allowed to play "turnabout" as they viewed those studying in the carrolls across the way with the aid of a telescope.

A clever little note in the form of an alarm clock hung from the end of one bunk by a piece of old coat hanger. The novel brown furry bedspread found in Nemacheck's room almost seemed to suggest that an afternoon nap was not such a bad idea.

Most of those who attended the open house would probably agree that Wally Sessions, chief organizer for the afternoon, deserves a good hand. The warm and sincere hospitality coupled with the neat and interesting rooms, not to mention Nature's smile on Peabody as light gusts of spring burst through most of the windows, showed the slightly older dorm and its individualistic occupants at their best.

The Exchange . . .

By ANN GOLDSMITH

Student government on college campuses is commonly accepted today. A generation ago, this was not true. Such a body functions differently at different institutions, and an active student government, though it may bring out individual sense of responsibility and may train leaders, does not necessarily indicate that the students are informed in our country's government and its policies.

At St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minnesota, the student body recently staged a Mock House of Representatives in a three-day program including Representatives Frank M. Coffin of Maine and Gerald R. Ford of Michigan; Robert E. VanDeusen to speak on "Church and State"; and keynote speaker Dr. Stephen K. Bailey, holder of the William Church Osborn professorship of Public Affairs at Princeton University.

As seen in our recent elections here at Lawrence, we are reviewing our basic objectives, both from the standpoint of the function of the governing body and considering the objectives and values of the Lawrence student. The "Encampment" this spring will consider the Honor System in how it may apply to Lawrence specifically the Honor Code.

In this we are not alone. Other Midwest colleges have held discussion on this same matter. Beloit, Monmouth and Knox seem to agree, as seen in an article in "The Oracle," of March 21:

"The main failure for the honor system to really work . . . is that the system presents two kinds of honor; one, as the student defines it; and two, as the honor code defines it.

"The honor code defines honor or this way: That cheating is wrong . . . that it should be prevented, and those who cheat should be punished as a preventive example . . . that honor itself is the active participation in the prevention of cheating in regard to oneself and to others . . . not to turn in a violation is a breach of honor, for it encourages cheating which is wrong.

"Now the student defines honor simply as 'It is wrong for me to cheat. Period!'

"For the honor system to really work, the students must be responsible not only for their own actions but for the actions of others. However, the average student feels that squealing on someone is almost as bad as cheating himself. And this is the problem that the honor code faces on every campus where it exists and where it has been suggested."

It seems to this reader that the point has been missed entirely. The Honor Code was never meant to be the framework for a police system, the police system being cited here of a person reporting on one's neighbor.

The real Honor Code is just what it literally implies, that the individual's sense of honor is at stake, i.e., that he is constantly on trial before himself, involving violation of trust and self-respect for oneself.

In a working Honor System, dishonesty is reported by the bystander or the one offended only as a last resort. The first step, rather, is to ask the violator to report himself. If the system is any good at all, the guilty party will feel compelled to do so. This has been found to be true in such systems in operation, and as far as this writer knows, if found to be otherwise is a prediction of that system's collapse.

Last weekend four students from Lawrence traveled to Northfield, Minnesota, for the Midwest Student Government Conference at St. Olaf. None of us had attended a conference before, so we were anticipating a new experience.

We had the opportunity to meet students from other schools and discuss various campus problems such as: Communications between the student government and the student body, faculty relations and judicial systems. I must honestly say that I received very little mechanical information that would be beneficial to us at Lawrence because Lawrence is more advanced than most of the other schools in the conference. Consequently the conference had little to offer.

Nevertheless, when the conference was over, we discovered that through the barrenness of the various meetings we had come away with a new respect for our school. Almost every question that was raised during the sessions pertained to problems already solved here at Lawrence. Our "J" Board is a superior institution when compared to other schools. I can also say with authority, since I made a point to look into the question, that our system of representation surpasses others, specifically dorm representation. It was quite evident that the schools with the biggest apathy problems were those that have dorm representation. When the issue of social life arose, here again, Lawrence seemed to have a better system of social life than any of the other schools.

International Club To Choose Heads

Elections for next year's International Club officers will be held the first week in May at a meeting which will be announced later. In order to recall the duties of the officers, we may review the guests of the past year. Such names as Senator Wiley, Marie C. Berger, Israeli Consul, Canadian Consul, and Japanese missionary appear on the roster of International guests.

Vikes Run Outdoors; Compete at Cornell

April 11 the Lawrence track team competed in the annual Cornell Relays held at Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Although no point total was kept, Viking entrants did place in seven of the meet's events. Also competing in the meet besides Lawrence were Midwest Conference schools Beloit, Carleton, host Cornell, Grinnell, Ripon, St. Olaf, along with Loras College (Iowa) State Teachers College from Cedar Rapids, St. Ambrose (Minnesota), and Simpson College, Iowa.

Tad Pinkerton, trying to repeat his performance of last week, led the mile race for three and one-half laps before Beloit's fine distance man Dave Peelle caught him in the last 220 yards. Peelle's effort of 4:22.6 was good enough to set a meet record.

Gil Sutherland placed third in the shot-put event with a heave of 45 ft., 8 in. Sutherland's toss left him three feet short of Ripon's Don Tomczak's winning throw.

Gary Scovel placed in two events. Gary nailed down third in the broad jump and came back to place fifth in the 120 yd. high hurdles. Carl Schwendler captured fifth place in the javelin throw.

In the relay events, Lawrence placed twice. In the Sprint Medley (220, 220, 440, and 880) a team composed of John Ross, Jim Leatham, Joel Blahnik and Dave Mulford placed third in the time of 3:39.4. Mulford ran his anchor 880 in the time of 1:55.9.

The Two Mile Relay found the Vikings crossing the finish line fifth. Handling the baton in this event were Dave Berginini, Ron Traver, Pinkerton and Mulford. In this relay Mulford again turned in an amazing performance by running his leg of the relay in 1:59.6.

Considering the lack of indoor practice, the Vikings did exceedingly well. Many athletes representing other schools in the Conference also did very well, which might indicate a good Conference track schedule this year.

Results of the Cornell Relays: Shot Put—1. Tomczak, Ripon; 2. Hood, ISTC; 3. Sutherland, Lawrence; 4. Veith, Simp.; 5. Weichel, ICTC, 48 ft., 8 in.

High Jump—1. Duea, ICTC; 2. Norman, St. Olaf; Miller, Beloit; Huffman, ICTC; Albrecht, Beloit, 6 ft. 3 in.

Broad Jump—1. Huffman, ICTC; 2. Gates, ICTC; 3. Scovel, Lawrence; 4. James, Lor; 5. Varley, St. Ambrose, 21 ft. 10½ in.

Javelin—1. Craigmile, Cornell; 2. Kasson, Ripon; 3. Huffman, ICTC; 4. Rutherford, Grinnell; 5. Schwendler, Lawrence, 196 ft., 10 in.

Quad Squads

By AL SALTZSTEIN

In the Interfraternity Volleyball league which has taken place during the past four weeks supposedly, we find the Delts leading the field with an unblemished 3 and 0 record. However, this year's league might better be called "forfeit ball" rather than volleyball as nearly all of the arranged games have been forfeited.

Of the Delts' three wins, two have been outright surrenders. Perhaps our intramural program is too large and should be toned down a bit.

At any rate something must be done for it's no use trying to play if nobody wants to. If you have any suggestions on this matter, or any other matter, please send me a letter. All reasonable suggestions will be aired.

The Phi Delts have won this year's bowling competition by compiling an impressive 21 and 9 record. The Phi Taus finished second. The Betas, by the way, declined to enter. In the handball tourney, the Betas were victorious over the Phi Delts. Jeff Mathews, of the Phi Delts, however, took individual honors by defeating George Friend of the Betas.

Bats Fail In Pinch; Lose In Opener, 7-1

Lawrence opened this year's baseball season in quite a dismal manner on Wednesday, April 15, as they were drubbed by Oshkosh State College, 7 to 1. A 7-run fourth inning, plus fine six-hit pitching by five Oshkosh hurlers, gave the victors an easy win. Errors and mental lapses on the part of Lawrence also aided Oshkosh.

Lawrence drew first blood in the game, in the second, Mike Gilboy reached first on an error, and was advanced to third on successive singles by Don Schuldt, and Harry Hartoonian. Dave Hackworthy then walked to force the run across. This was not a day for clutch performances on the Vikings' part, however, as the next three batters, Al Berman, Karl Franke, and Rick Ramsey, failed.

Oshkosh began to rally in the bottom of the second, as John Lettenberger and Jerry Pepler led off with hits. A double play erased any immediate threat, but Franke proceeded to get himself in trouble again, as he walked the next two batters. A force play at second ended the inning with no damage done.

In the third, Lawrence again loaded the bases with hits by Jim Schulze, and Charlie Scruggs, and a walk to Hartoonian. Again, however, the runners died on base.

The fourth inning saw Oshkosh unleash their tremendous surge. In all, 11 men batted for the Titans as they compiled 7 runs on 7 hits and two walks and a hit batsman. The onslaught began with a towering home run by Dan Sheets, Oshkosh left fielder, which cleared the fence at the 340 foot mark, driving in two runs.

For the remainder of the game, Mike Gilboy did a dandy job of holding Oshkosh in tact as did the final three pitchers of the victors in holding Lawrence. Gilboy allowed but one hit in the final four innings. John Harke was the winning pitcher for the Titans, while Franke suffered the defeat.

Tennis Squad Travels To Northfield; Positions Unsure

By ALEXANDER W. WILDE

Although the tennis team has been on the courts for two weeks, no places on the team have yet been settled. The aspirants have played through a round robin tournament, but the results are inconclusive.

As the boys leave for their first match of the year with Carleton and St. Olaf this week end in Northfield, Minnesota, apparently only Motz Drew, Dick Lang, Tom Hurvis, and Dan Schuyler are assured of the ride. Since six men are carried along, the fight for the remaining two positions will be between Dave Grant, Quen Sharp and Pete Walch.

Coach Chet Hill seems to be fairly well pleased with the early practice sessions. The members of last year's fine freshman team have provided hot competition for the lettermen from last year's varsity. Although there is no one outstanding player, the balance on the team should be excellent. Because of the delayed starting date, the major problem for most of the team members seems to be consistency.

VIKING EDDA

By JEFF KNOX, AL SALTZSTEIN and ALEX WILDE

Senior letterman Dave Mulford could be headed for his best track season. His two 880's in the Cornell Relays were excellent times, especially for this early in the season. His anchor leg in the Sprint Medley event was little short of amazing, 1:55.9.

Another fine performance was turned in by Tad Pinkerton. Although passed in the stretch by Senior Dave Peelle of Beloit, Tad finished strong in about 4:27, his first time outdoors. Tad has three more cracks at Peelle this year and will be trying hard to avenge this recent defeat. Last year, as a sophomore, the slim Viking edged his rival in the Conference meet.

The team has looked pretty good and it could be a successful season, but sometimes we wonder what Lawrence could do with really good indoor facilities to sharpen them up for the outdoor season. This shortcoming is especially noticeable (and painful) when the winter drags on and prevents practice outdoors. It's tough to start the season from the outside lane.

While we are talking about a lack of facilities, we would mention that the baseball team is working under a tremendous handicap. The team took the field Wed. afternoon without one minute of practice on a baseball field. How is a team to represent a college to the best of its ability without having any practice? This is folly. The team should have a chance to work out on a regular field. The baseball team has fine potential and should have a suitable practice field.

Fijis Treat KDs To Dinner Songs

KDs and Fijis began last weekend's festivities early with a dinner party and dance held Friday evening at the Phi Gam house.

Quartet singing launched an evening of songs which ranged from fraternity to folk types. The Kappa Delta "KD Dids" sparked as they began the evening's entertainment. A uke strummin' Fiji quartet provided an especially refreshing note but could not hope to bring the gales of laughter aroused by three costumed KDs dancing to a satiric record.

"Scarlet Ribbons" and "Daddy Boy" were two of the ballads presented by Jeff Dean with his guitar. These were followed by the inevitable rounds of fraternity songs, without which no college party is complete. Community singing and dancing followed in the Phi Gam basement.

All activity had to be suspended, however, at that immortal hour when all red-blooded Americans, including Lawrence Fijis and KDs flock to their TV sets to watch "77 Sunset Strip."

Film Classics to Show Experimental Movies

Several experimental films will be the program for this week's Film Classics Sunday afternoon and evening in the Art Center.

These movies are representative of the growing number of new and highly unusual productions which have been coming from outside the Hollywood studios. Ever since the 1920's, avant-garde films have been experimenting with next new techniques and styles and many of the radical innovations they initiated have become standard film processes.

Recently the production of experimental films has been stimulated by the growth of a large and appreciative audience who have become aware of the importance of these films as a means of discovering new and useful film techniques.

Included in the program will be "The Stranger Left No Card," a tense mystery shown originally on Omnibus, "A Time Out of War," a Civil War story, a surrealist classic by artist Salvador Dali, and other musical, abstract symbolic, and humorous works. Program notes will be provided as well as introductory comments when necessary.

What Now?

We on the editorial board, question the advisability of permitting so many of the professors to leave the campus next year. We realize that this will result in our ultimate benefit, but the immediate result has been the temporary omission of many courses and the weakening of several departments.

The omission of American history 11-12 next year is an example of this situation. Because this course is a prerequisite for all other courses in American history, any freshmen wishing to continue in American history will be able to do so only in his senior year.

Secondly, the duplication of several popular courses with regard to time scheduling prevents students from taking several in the same year. Introduction to political science and physical science are two such courses. Sometimes it is not only advisable, but necessary to take such courses in the same year.

The administrative problem of scheduling non-conflicting courses is great, we realize; however, the problem on the other side, the students' problem, seems especially acute this year.

From Where I Stand . . .

By GEORGE RESCH

The issue of "Loyalty oaths," much discussed a few years ago, seems to be with us again. The problem has arisen as a result of a provision in the "National Defense Education Act" which requires that those who receive federal assistance under this act take an oath of loyalty to the Federal Government.

This act was passed in an atmosphere bordering on hysteria over recent Russian scientific advances. Traditionally, support of education has been a local and/or state function. There is no good reason for the federal government to be in this area of activity at all.

Loyalty oaths certainly do have an odious character about them. There is something ludicrous in the idea of pledging loyalty to an institution whose personnel, forms, functions, and purposes are constantly being modified. Is not loyalty, after all, something which must be earned?

Yet for all of this, there is something anxious about most of the protests against this provision of the act. Many of the critics seem to look upon the state as the source of "every good and perfect gift." They would have the state provide them with everything and would give nothing in return. If the signing of a loyalty oath represents subservience to the state, so does the acceptance of a government dole. These oaths are nothing more than a quid pro quid, the inevitable price of government subsidization. Why should those who want someone else to pay the fiddler object when he begins to call the tunes?

The MELTING POT . . .

TO THE EDITOR:

Re: Mr. Bowen's letter of March 20: (Mr. Bowen):

He obviously did not find my letter either delightful or instructive, as he says, for his reply was one of the most irrational and fanatic statements I have ever read. It left me wondering how the Lawrentian could lower itself to publish such drivel. And obviously Mr. Bowen did disagree.

He seems to have a flair for big words and ponderous phrases such as "you have diametrically contradicted the rest of your thesis," which has absolutely no meaning in the context of either my letter or his. I said absolutely nothing of promulgating a policy of "expediency"—that was not the thesis, as Mr. Bowen somehow supposed. The word does not, in fact, occur in my letter.

I wrote in defense of a democratic principle. Mr. Bowen writes in defense of a dictatorial one. He says, in effect, three or more parties will breed disorganization and instability in a government . . . therefore they are bad; they must be stamped out.

Did it ever occur to Mr. Bowen that a third party arises out of justifiable dissatisfaction with the present state of affairs, that it is a sign that the present form of government is not acting in the best interests of a large segment of the people, that these people are entitled to their own constructive form of thought, action and initiative in politics? Have we not already had enough proof of the decadent condition which security and complacency of office bring?

How did it happen that the voting clause of the constitution just "got lost" somewhere along the way? How did it happen that very few people batted an eyelash when Mr. MacArthur took it upon himself to speak ex cathedra and make a ruling any way which seemed convenient for him? If, through a multiplicity of parties, the vote should be split so that no candidate gains a sufficient majority, the best way to ascertain the choice of the students is to have a run-off election. I see nothing objectionable or insurmountable there. I can't see the problem here.

Re: Miss Schwendener's platform, I did not write in defense, but merely in clarification of its misinterpretation and misrepresentation, which could never have occurred except at the hands of an unthinking, thoroughly partial operator. Prejudiced eyes have allowed Mr. Bowen to assume that the defense of a platform was the main issue, when the main issues were in fact, another two, which he tried most unsuccessfully to cover up: that of the right of a third party to establish itself in a democracy, which he cannot refute; and that of the facts of the recent "election," which are not legitimate, under the existing available laws, no matter how he tries to juggle them.

I regret to say that farcical pro-Greek statements like Mr. Bowen's would make me quite happy to see most elements of the Greek groups vanish from the campus entirely, concerning which I do not speak as an independent, and I am fully aware of the questions involved.

What makes Mr. Bowen assume that the Greeks are the life-blood of the college? And the student government? I am aware that there are not many similar to those whom Mr. Bowen represents and that these last remarks can only be applied to a few but how casual can the college get? Such matters would be a scandal on any thinking campus, which is, come to think of it, a considerable qualification.

NANCY TAYLOR GERNON

It is policy of the Lawrentian has been to publish all letters to the editor if they are signed and are of interest to the readers. If you feel that the Lawrentian has lowered itself in publishing Mr. Bowen's "drivel," I would remind you that we are publishing your letter here in toto also. You speak of Jeff's "ponderous phrases" and that you see no meaning for the use of several of said phrases. Perhaps others who have had little background in political science may have felt the same way, however Jeff's statements are based on national and international historical FACTS, that have shown multi-party systems to be at least inefficient and usually ineffective with the subsequent result being the return to a two-party system. This, it seems to me, is his central point in his phrases in which you could not, or chose not to, see meaning.

I agree that third parties often arise out of "dissatisfaction with the present state of affairs" and so do both Mr. Bowen and, I'm sure, Doug Moland, our new SEC president. Since he has been in office, Doug has been carefully examining the problems of SEC and plans to do something DEFINITE about them. Perhaps some of Miss Schwendener's ideas and/or the ideas of the group behind her will be realized in the changes which may be proposed. However, I doubt very much that the Greek groups, who, despite your objection, have been, still are, and are likely to remain the "life-blood" of the college, would cause their own death by voting in favor of dorm representation. It is unrealistic, therefore, to count on the dorm system as the solution to unequal representation.

If you feel Bill MacArthur's decision to allow the candidate with the most votes to win was wrong, you are certainly within your rights to say so. But ask yourself this, frankly: If the election had brought Judy into office, would I be writing about the "lost clause" or the decision to have a plurality election? If you can say yes one would have to admire you for being above personal motives in your attitudes toward the situation. If the answer is no, one would admire you for recognizing that attitude in sincerity and frank humility.
